

Contents

Part I: Context

Chapter 1: Setting the scene

*By Dominic Griffiths, managing partner,
Mayer Brown International LLP*

Chapter 2: A decade of conversation about mental health

By Professor Richard Collier, Leverhulme Trust Emeritus Research Professor, Newcastle Law School

Chapter 3: The business case for wellbeing

By Renee Branson, MA Counseling Psychology

Part II: Culture and leadership

Chapter 4: The importance of a wellbeing culture

*By Dominic Griffiths, managing partner,
Mayer Brown International LLP*

Chapter 5: Systemic health and systemic leadership: what is it and why does it matter?

By James Pereira, barrister and executive coach

Chapter 6: Leadership, governance and accountability

By Dr Emma Jones PFHEA, senior lecturer in law, University of Sheffield

Part III: The evolving workplace

Chapter 7: The impact of AI

By Marco Imperiale, managing director, Better Ipsum

Chapter 8: Working well, anywhere

By Lisa Walker, principal, Walker Clarke

Part IV: People and support

Chapter 9: Unmasking imposter syndrome and mastering mental endurance

By Shuvra Deb, coach and former barrister

Part V: Implementation and measurement

Chapter 10: How do you measure success?

By Andy Stewart, ex-Mayer Brown partner and speaker on mental health

Chapter 11: Designing and implementing wellbeing programmes

By Richard Martin, Mindful Business Charter

Conclusion

*By Dominic Griffiths, managing partner,
Mayer Brown International LLP*