

Table of contents

Figures	7
Tables	7
I. Introduction	9
1. The four vectors	10
1.1 Across disciplines within the legal group	10
1.2 With the business, including front-line managers, executives and governing boards	10
1.3 Between the legal team and other corporate functions	11
1.4 With external parties beyond the organisation	11
2. Research methodology, confidentiality and terminology	11
3. In this Special Report	12
II. The case for collaboration	15
1. Benefits of in-house legal teams' collaboration across all four vectors	16
1.1 Higher-quality, lower-risk solutions	16

- 1.2 Innovative outcomes 20
- 1.3 Operational efficiency 22
- 1.4 Attract, engage and retain talent 23
- 1.5 Diversity and inclusion 25
- 1.6 Individual benefits: networking, recognition, legacy 27

- III. Real and perceived obstacles to collaboration 31

- 1. Barriers 33

- 1.1 Time pressures and the drive for efficiency (27%) 33
- 1.2 Interpersonal distrust and territoriality (22%) 35
- 1.3 Knowledge gap about your legal, business and functional colleagues' expertise (17%) 37
- 1.4 Lack of skills and confidence to initiate and carry out collaboration (15%) 38
- 1.5 An unsupportive culture (11%) 39
- 1.6 Lack of trust in others' competence (8%) 40

- 2. Closing thoughts on barriers 42

- IV. Building collaboration within the in-house legal team 43

- 1. From vision to strategy 44

- 2. Hiring collaborative talent 47

- 3. External hires – the three stages 49

- 3.1 Preparing to hire 49
- 3.2 Recruiting collaborators 52
- 3.3 Integrating those new hires 53

- 4. Collaborating across geographical divides 55

- 5. Building leadership skills 60

- 5.1 Tie actions and directives to the larger vision 62
- 5.2 Create an open, learning-centric environment 62
- 5.3 Build your team's future-ready competencies 63
- 5.4 Create exposure opportunities for others 63
- 5.5 Offer timely 'suggestions' (instead of anxiety-producing feedback) 65
- 5.6 Celebrate success 66

- 6. Making time for collaboration 68

7. Closing thoughts on collaboration within the team	70
V. Smart collaboration with business executives	71
1. Earn a seat at the strategy table	73
1.1 Be more than just a lawyer	74
1.2 Develop and share future-focused insights	79
2. Claim your seat at the strategy table and use it effectively	81
2.1 Overcoming imposter syndrome	81
2.2 Building and using authentic gravitas	83
2.3 Help shape the style and tone of interactions across the executive team	83
3. Build two kinds of trust	83
3.1 Building interpersonal trust	84
3.2 Building competence trust	85
3.3 Climbing the Trust Staircase	87
4. Concluding thoughts: collaborate by building relationships	92
VI. Smart collaboration between Legal and other corporate functions	93
1. Proactively build relationships – while the pressure is lower	97
2. Paths to building cross-functional relationships	99
2.1 Formal relationship-building	99
2.2 Informal relationship-building	104
3. Explore others' perspectives	105
4. Building the bridge	106
4.1 Spend time consciously focused on the other person's (or group's) agenda	106
4.2 Develop and demonstrate genuine curiosity	107
4.3 Probe the politics (sensitively)	107

- 5. Lead collaborative efforts for higher performance 110
 - 5.1 Employ disciplined project management to maximise use of time and other resources 110
 - 5.2 Distinguish between task conflicts and relationship conflicts 112
 - 5.3 Use your influencing skills rather than your authority 113
- 6. From responder to thought partner 114
- VII. Smart collaboration with external stakeholders 115
 - 1. Degree of joint experience 116
 - 1.1 Mature, deep (stakes: high; innovation need: high)117
 - 1.2 Familiar (stakes: low; innovation need: low) 117
 - 1.3 New (stakes: low; innovation need: high) 117
 - 1.4 Strong (stakes: high; innovation need: low) 117
 - 2. Collaborating with outside counsel, including law firms and ALSPs 118
 - 3. Collaborating with regulators 123
 - 3.1 Establish trust and credibility with regulators through upstanding conduct and an effective compliance regime 125
 - 3.2 Help shape the regulatory environment 127
 - 3.3 Proactively participate in voluntary regulatory framework discussions 128
 - 4. Collaborating with legal team counterparts in other organisations 129
 - 5. Closing thoughts: collaborating outside the company 131
- VIII. Smart collaboration: the ongoing opportunity 133
 - 1. The ‘dark side’ of collaboration: an over-committed organisation 136
 - 1.1 The Four Ms 137
 - 2. Final thoughts 139

Notes	140
About the author	143
About Globe Law and Business	144
Figures
Figure 1. Four vectors of collaboration for in-house legal teams	11
Figure 2. Benefits of cross-domain collaboration	17
Figure 3. Business outcomes of employee engagement	24
Figure 4. Collaboration and performance – added value from smart collaboration	27
Figure 5. The reinforcing cycle of collaboration benefits	28
Figure 6. Barriers to collaboration for in-house legal teams	32
Figure 7. Collaboration and external hires – two paths	48
Figure 8. Three-stage process for external hiring	49
Figure 9. Multi-tiered benefits of role-based competency grids	64
Figure 10. Preference gap between giving and receiving feedback	66
Figure 11. Leader’s reaction to subordinate’s good news	67
Figure 12. How CEOs view Legal: cost vs value-add	72
Figure 13. The Trust Staircase	87
Figure 14. From responder to thought partner	96
Figure 15. Avoiding the performance pressure trap	97
Figure 16. Smart collaboration with external actors: degree of prior joint experience	116
Figure 17. The danger zone	134
Figure 18. Measure it: collaboration across many teams	138
Tables
Table 1. Paths to cross-functional relationships	100
Table 2. Signs of excellent and deficient collaboration within outside firms	120